A Forest Service Centennial Documentary Film:

A black and white photograph of two Forest Service rangers. One ranger is standing on a rocky outcrop, looking out over a vast, forested valley. The other ranger is sitting on the same outcrop, looking in the same direction. The title 'THE GREATEST GOOD' is overlaid on the right side of the image in a large, white, serif font.

THE GREATEST GOOD

Forest Service explores 100 years of action with this feature-length centennial documentary capturing the conflict and growth battled by our country's visionaries and politicians.

First Forest Service Chief Gifford Pinchot, 1905, urged for a reconciliation of "conflicting interests" through analysis of "the greatest good for the greatest number in the long run." One hundred years later, Forest Service employees are still grappling to achieve this complex goal.
